Market Summary

- The international petroleum market is experiencing extreme volatility and a significant supply shock due to the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. Iran has expanded its targets to include upstream production facilities. On Monday, a drone strike hit the Shah natural gas field (UAE), causing a fire and suspending operations.
- The Naira strengthened by approximately #8.46 against the Dollar between Friday (March 13) and Monday (March 16). A 0.62% movement in a single trading day suggests a relatively active market.

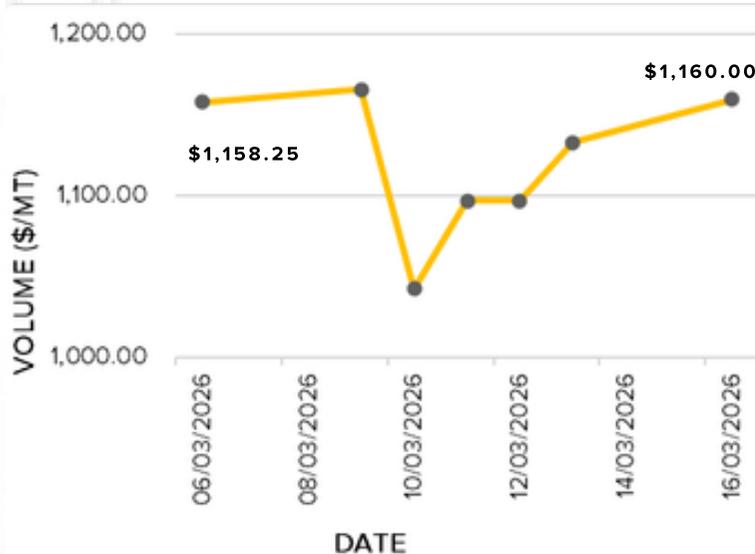

- Strong margins in West Africa are allowing the Dangote refinery to offer diesel at highly competitive levels, with discounts for FOB Lekki diesel falling to record lows versus the Offshore Lome market. Traders said FOB Lekki material from Dangote was being offered at a $40/mt premium to April ICE LSGO, undercutting the Offshore Lome market by at least $50/mt. Offers, meanwhile, in the Offshore Lome were heard as high as $120/mt. Continue reading full version on S&P Global Core: <https://tinyurl.com/y476h7nj>.

Disclaimer: International petroleum prices are extremely volatile and subject to multiple intraday fluctuations. The import parity cost presented here is a snapshot calculated using market prices as of 4:00 PM the previous business day.
